Teen Witch: Wicca for a New Generation

Witchcraft has been around for millenniums. However, with the advent of new religions, witchcraft was not only relegated to a "heathen" or "kaffir" status, the practitioners of witchcraft were hunted and killed by people. These murderers hid behind a mask that was purportedly created by the new imaginary deity that is still in vogue, a male deity called "God".

Anyone who has followed true history (not the versions written by colonialists or other conquerors) knows that although there were petty wars among ancient tribes and cultures, there was nothing as damaging or alarming as the world wars we have seen since then. When a group of people goes extreme and believes that they are the only awakened people on Earth, wars happen.

However, when there were no religions, the world was a much more peaceful place. With the advent of nuclear weapons and rogue nations, it is only a matter of time that this beautiful planet of ours will be in grave danger.

As the older generations worry about who is more powerful, they forget that the future belongs to the younger generation who are more aware of the rest of the world thanks to the internet and its applications such as email, chat rooms, websites, messenger, twitter and facebook. Ask any youngster and they can rattle off numerous ways by which they correspond with their "friends" in many parts of the world. Wonderful, isn't it?

The current generation is so much more aware of other cultures and their customs. They do not see a country as separate from any other unless adults teach them hatred. They do not see people as different unless we parents tell them it is so. Children are born with magick in their hearts. All we need to do is to stop indoctrinating them with our narrow-minded views and let their awareness blossom naturally.

Religion divides, Witchcraft unifies. How can we teach our children to be good citizens? How can we teach them to be caring and considerate to everyone, regardless of color, country or religion?

Since we have witchcraft all over the world, Wicca can be easy to learn about. Most cultures have their own form of native cures, home remedies and ways for fun and laughter.

With Wicca, the younger generation will gain many benefits including:

1. Self sufficiency - they will know that they are powerful and can create the life they want without hurting anyone.
2. Happiness - Knowing that they can achieve their dreams also helps keep them satisfied in life.
3. They will take care of the world; for Wicca is all about caring for nature and our precious resources.
4. They will preserve the environment by growing their own herbs and plants and not depending on commercial pesticide laden foods.
5. They will know that any negative action will bring back three times its returns. There will be less violence in this world
6. They will know that what actions we do in this life is important because of the law of karma.
7. They will have more respect for all cultures and will be the key to lasting peace in the world.

We can always hope that this violent world where might is right will soon be replaced by peace loving people who think not just locally, but globally at all times.
